TRI-STATE DEFENDER

THE MID-SOUTH'S PREMIUM SOURCE OF NEWS & INFORMATION
NEEDS OF THE AFRICAN-AMERICAN COMMUNITY SINCE 1951

The Tri-State Defender (TSD) is one of the longest, continuously published newspapers in the South that caters to the news and information needs of the African-American community. In January 2024, we made the decision to transition to primarily a digital format to keep our readers informed quickly as news hits that affects the community.

First published on Nov. 1, 1951, the weekly newspaper has always been an anchor element in the multi-platform delivery of news and information. The Tri-State Defender continues to inform and inspire readers while seeking to help them elevate the quality of their lives.

TSDMemphis.com is the primary source for news now along with the TSD Daily Digital and the social media platforms.

Lee Eric Smith is the Interim Editor for the Tri-State Defender. He directs a roster of talented reporters and columnists. The team relays the ongoing narrative of the African-American community as it evolves in myriad forms, including family, neighborhoods, education, business, religion, government, commentary and opinion, entertainment, sports and various civic groups.

The TSD has a board of directors that measures performance in the context of the company's mission. The president is Calvin Anderson, Deidre Malone, vice president, Rev. Dr. L. LaSimba M. Gray Jr., treasurer; and Vanecia Belser Kimbrow, Esq., secretary.

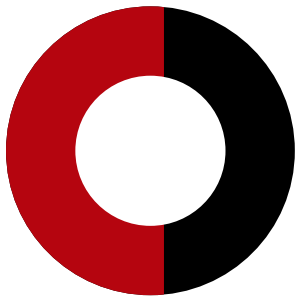

This media kit contains rates for digital, print, and social media platforms. For more information contact the Sales Department at The Tri-State Defender at 901-523-1818.
